ABOUT THE COLLEGE:

Sagar Mahavidyalaya is a co-education college at Sagar Island in West Bengal, affiliated to the University of Calcutta and was established in the year 1998. The college has undergraduate programs in BA (Honours), BA (General) and B.Sc (General).

Since the establishment of the Institution, it has been working on reshaping the future of 35,000 families of Sagar Island one of the largest deltas in the world. The Island while witnessing climatic changes and natural disasters, has also witnessed many important events in Indian history. The establishment of the college has given opportunities in Higher Education to thousands of students in the Island who otherwise find it difficult to commute to or live in distant places for Higher Education purpose.

WEBINAR: "TEACHING LEARNING & EVALUATION DURING AND AFTER PANDEMIC PERIOD"

What has traditionally been attributed to the meaning and practices of the education process is in a standstill now. This standstill, while in the national scenario can be attributed to COVID-19 and the corresponding disruption of everyday life, has a double meaning for Sagar Mahavidyalaya and colleges like us which are also facing the brunt of extreme climatic events like floods and cyclones. Thus while the pandemic is an exception for a large number of colleges, institutions like Sagar Mahavidyalaya also have to brace for similar disruptions which are going to be the normal mode of operation considering the climate change and corresponding challenges to higher education practices in the present and future.

Thus while COVID-19 has disrupted the normal academic calendar and how institutions functioned in India and West Bengal, it is also an opportunity to rethink the teaching, learning and evaluation practices that institutions have been following before and during the pandemic. While the challenges to the academic calendar have been unprecedented, the situation also offers possibility to think through these challenges and work towards innovative solutions to address the current and future challenges that the teaching learning community are and will be facing. Towards the same the Department of Education, Sagar Mahavidyalaya invites Prof. Dulal Mukhopadhyaya, Prof. (Dr.) Kaberi Saha, Prof. (Dr.) Abhijit Kumar Pal, Dr. Amulya Kumar Acharya and others.

Target Groups: Teachers, Professors, Academicians, Educational Practitioners, NGOs, IT Sectors, Health Experts and people serving in multidisciplinary branches are cordially invited.

National Webinar

Pandemic, Climate Change and Literature

While literature always tries to situate climate crisis in the dystopian future, the recent pandemic alarmingly raises our concerns about the horrific environmental issues. The situation we are in right now is proving to be a reflection of the already existing Eco-Literature and pandemic literature. The purpose of this webinar is to address the issues of the horrors of pandemic and climate change together and to rethink the impact of climate crisis in this disturbed times.
